

WELCOME TO THE DALLAWAY WATERSHED

The Dallaway Watershed is a protected forested catchment that plays a vital role in supplying clean, reliable water to hotels, industrial facilities, and surrounding communities in Saint Vincent and the Grenadines.

This watershed is also home to an abundance of native wildlife, including the Vincy Parrot (Amazona guldingii), Saint Vincent's national bird, as well as the Black Snake (Chironus vinceutii) and the Congo Snake (Corallus cookii). The healthy forests of the Dallaway Watershed provide essential habitat for these species while protecting the island's water resources.

THE DALLAWAY WATERSHED

Protected forest catchment

Supplies clean, reliable water to hotels, industrial facilities, and communities

Supports abundant native wildlife and healthy forests

Home to the Vincy Parrot (Amazona guldingii)

Home to the Black Snake (Chironus vinceutii)

Home to the Congo Snake (Corallus cookii)

KEY FACT

The Dallaway Watershed is a protected forested catchment.

Supplies clean, reliable water to hotels, industrial facilities, and surrounding communities.

Home to native wildlife, including the Vincy Parrot (Amazona guldingii).

Also home to the Black Snake (Chironus vinceutii) and the Congo Snake (Corallus cookii).

Healthy forests provide essential habitat and protect the island's water resources.